Speakers

Finding Excellence Among the Rubbish: Sacramental Imagination and Extrabiblical Histories

Rev. Jacob Benson was born and raised in the Big Horn Basin and counts it one of the greatest of blessings that God has called him to minister in his native Wyoming, where he enjoys gardening and hiking with his wife and son. Rev. Benson is a graduate of Concordia Theological Seminary, where he wrote and defended the thesis Storytelling and Doctrinal Identity: John, Paul, and the Parting of the Ways. He is particularly interested in how extra-biblical and fictional literature can shape the Christian in the image of his Lord.

In Your Light we see Light: Science in the Light of Christ

Rev. Kenneth Mars is pastor of Christ the King Lutheran Church and Preschool in Cody, Wyoming. He holds a Master of Science degree in Geology from Texas Tech University and worked in the uranium mining industry for five years before being ordained in 2005. He is interested in the history and philosophy of science and its interaction with Christian theology. He and his wife, Vickie, have homeschooled their eight children for 16 years.

Singing and Seeing the Scriptures: The Bible in Music and Art

Rev. Andrew Richard is the Assistant Pastor and Headmaster of Mount Hope Lutheran Church and School, where he teaches Religion, History, English, Literature, Poetry, Logic, and Rhetoric to the upperlevel students. He homeschooled his children before moving to Casper. He enjoys studying the biblical and classical languages, writing poetry and hymns, singing, and reading great works of literature. Pastor Richard is married and has six children.
